To Whom it May Concern:

This letter is to recommend Alumco machining services. Alumco started machining parts for AT&T CampusWide in 1992. At that time, because we had our own machining centers, the first parts outsourced to Alumco were parts that belonged to a line that was losing its market share and was interfering with our higher volume parts. The quality of the parts that we received from Alumco were excellent, exceeding our expectations. Over the next two years we continued to increase our orders to Alumco because of the high quality and competitive price. The service, quality, and timeliness that Alumco delivered made it possible for us to focus our energies on our value added services and products. In 1996 we made the decision to outsource 100% of our machining needs to Alumco. Their quality has been so great that we have eliminated all inspection of incoming products. Our relationship with Alumco has grown from a vendor to a true partnership helping us to succeed. If you would like more information about our partnership with Alumco, please call me at (602) 861-8531.

Sincerely
